ACKNOWLEDGMENT

This directory of essential oils stakeholders is prepared by ANSAB (Asia Network for Sustainable Agriculture and Bioresources) under the Forest and Farm Facility Program of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO). We would like to thank Ms. Sophie Grouwels of FAO and Ms. Racchya Shah of International Union for Conservation of Nature for their continuous support.

Our gratitude goes to Nepal Herbs and Herbal Products Association (NEHHPA) and Jadibuti Association of Nepal (JABAN) for their support during compilation of information. We wholeheartedly thank Mr. Vijaya Man Sthapit and Mr. Khilendra Gurung for supporting us through out the development of this directory.

Thanks are due to ANSAB team, mainly Mr. Puspa Ghimire - Programs Director for his leadership and guidance to the the team; Ms. Aakriti Poudel - Program Officer, Dr. Nabin Raj Joshi - Forest and Climate Change Expert, Mr. Chandika Amgain – Program Officer, and Mr. Bharat Sharma - Program Officer for compiling information and chapters; and Mr. Sudarshan Khanal - Research, Planning and Communication Manager for reviewing the directory for final print. This publication has benefitted from the data and information generated from ANSAB’s current and past projects. We acknowledge ANSAB’s donors, namely, Darwin Initiatives, Aveda Corporation, GIZ, SNV, USAID and EU among others through whose support these projects have been implemented, and the relevant data and information were generated.

We hope that this directory will be a good reference tool for all the stakeholders involved in the essential oils sector.

ABOUT THIS DIRECTORY

This Directory of Essential Oils Stakeholders in Nepal presents the compilation of information of existing stakeholders involved in the essential oils sector of Nepal. It includes the detailed contact information of the actors and service providers involved in essential oil value chain in Nepal. The main purpose of this directory is to facilitate the stakeholders involved in essential oils value chain by bringing the relevant information together that would help them for steadfast communication for improved linkages to markets and essential oils business development services. With the transparent and accessible information of the stakeholders, this directory will also serve as a reference document to organizations/institutions, federations/associations, aspiring small and big entrepreneurs, business persons, researchers, community groups and students involved in essential oils sector of Nepal. Efforts have been put to include majority of the relevant stakeholders engaged in essential oils in the country, however this directory may not have covered all of them.

This directory contains the general background of essential oils in Nepal, and list of producers, processors, traders, manufactures, exporters and service providers working in this sector with the detailed contact information.

Method of data collection: A consultative approach involving communication with concerned stakeholders involved in essential oils sector in the country was applied for collection of information. A letter informing on the preparation of the directory and requesting the information on essential oil enterprises was circulated via email to the concerned stakeholders, including the district chambers of commerce and industries, concerned organizations, federations and associations, and entrepreneurs.

The primary data and information were collected and with relevant stakeholders through emails, telephone communications and key informant interviews. The secondary data was collected through the associated old databases and publications of ANSAB, sectorial databases and contacts, published directories of different organizations, relevant websites, internet searches and informal discussion with essential oil entrepreneurs. The information and data collected were triangulated and verified through interviews with key informants and ANSAB staffs working in the sector. Follow-up calls were made with the enterprises for the additional and updated information.

ESSENTIAL OILS IN NEPAL

Nepal is rich in diversity of plant species. There are around 7,000 flowering plant species in Nepal, out of which 1,624 plant species can be potentially utilized for medicinal and aromatic purposes. These plant species exist in diverse altitudinal range where climatic condition is influenced by maritime and continental factors with four distinct seasons. MAPs including essential oil bearing plants are one of the most important components of NTFPs occurring naturally or cultivated in forest and farm ecosystems, and have high socio-cultural and economic values in Nepal.

Essential oils are chemical compounds having odoriferous nature, highly volatile, insoluble in water but soluble in organic solvents and obtained by the steam distillation process. Within the plant, the essential oils occur in various parts: in some species they are found throughout the plants and in some they are restricted to one special portion such as flower, fruit, seed, leaf, wood, root and rhizome of the plant. The concentration of essential oils in the plant are generally highest during summer and thus, summers are regarded as the best time for harvesting and distillation. The quality of essential oils depends on number of factors such as soil conditions, climate, altitude, time of harvesting and the distillation unit equipment used for the extraction. The source of the essential oils may vary from cultivated to wild. The essential oils of agricultural origin are Mentha, Lemongrass, Citronella, Palmarosa and Chamomile, and the common essential oils of wild origin are Spikenard, Juniper, Anthopogon, Abies, Cedar, Valerian and Wintergreen. Some essential oils are of agricultural as well as forest origin, such as Zanthoxylum and Cinnamon.

The official commitment from the government of Nepal for the promotion of MAPs started with the establishment of the Department of Plant Resources (formerly known as Department of Medicinal Plants) in 1960 AD. The sector further fostered with the establishment of Herbs Production and Processing Company Limited (HPPCL) in 1981 AD with its concept of commercial production, trading and exporting of the essential oils for the various purpose. Since then, the government of Nepal through development of Herbs and NTFPs Coordination Committee, promulgation of Herbs and NTFP Development Policy, 2004 and inclusion in periodic plans have been promoting the NTFPs/MAPs sector in Nepal. Currently, different government and development programs have been promoting cultivation of essential oils bearing plants and processing into essential oils in Nepal.

Essential oils are generally high value and low volume commodities. This makes them attractive species for wild collection as well as cultivation, processing and trading among small holder farmers and remote communities where transport facilities prevent them from marketing high volume cash crops. The contribution of essential oils to the rural livelihoods is significant as the significant number of people in rural areas depend on collection of essential oil bearing plants for their livelihoods. Sustainable harvesting, processing and trading of MAPs/essential oils contribute to diversification of the annual household income making it the most promising sector as far as the rural communities income are concerned.

The MAPs-based essential oils sector is a growing commercial sector in Nepal. Based on the consultation with the stakeholders and key informants, and review of the relevant literatures and records during the preparation of this directory, over 20 major commercially important essential oils are found to have high production and export potential in Nepal. The table below presents the list of commercially important essential oils bearing plants in Nepal.
